

"MY COUNTRY" SONG TO NEW MELODY

Three Hundred Child Voices Delight the Waldorf with the Changed Tones.

Three hundred child voices, accompanied by sixty musical boys and girls, filled the Waldorf-Astoria last night with a rare volume of melody when they burst forth at the wave of Quintano's baton in the new setting of "My Country 'Tis of Thee" recently published exclusively in The Evening World.

The audience, which overflowed into the hallways, and the late diners in the cafe, as well as the habitués of Peacock Row, were surprised by the sudden burst of the spirited melody which accompanied the words so familiar to every true American ear.

It is rare that a chorus of such magnitude and sweetness is heard in the Waldorf, and soon the elevators became with the guests wending their way toward the big Waldorf-Astoria Gallery, where Quintano's creation was being rendered for the first time in public.

The verses were sung through when an overwhelming storm of applause called for its repetition. This was repeated when the anthem was sung a second and a third time, and it was evident that new setting for this grand old patriotically religious hymn had struck a popular chord.

Quintano, in his composition, has very deftly preserved a phantom suggestion of the original air, which was stolen by the British from the German, and in turn stolen from the British by the American. He has added a dash of Handel, a touch of Sullivan, a suggestion of Verdi, and the result is an inspiring composition that raises the hymn out of its present drab-like nature and suggestion and converts it into a spirited poem of triumph and self-reliance and withal a melody that can be easily mastered by the masses—a most essential thing in a composition that aspires to become a national anthem. In appreciation of Quintano's efforts to create the new national air, a large delegation of the members of the musical colony of New York, were present. The Italian vice-consul and most of the prominent Italian residents of the city were in attendance. They presented Quintano with an illuminated certificate making him vice-president for life of the Neapolitan Friendly Society. A gold medal with suitable inscription, a bronze figure of "Music" and a gold mounted conductor's baton were among the other gifts were showered on the maestro. Some of the young people who contributed to the success of the program were the Misses Astrid Abern, Ruthe Rubiner, Guida Rubiner, Helen Kleiner, Florence Kleiner, Rosamond McLaughlin, Katherine Jung, Veronika McDonald, Ella Nylan, Mildred Grimm, Lena Coblenz, Annie Silver, Sher, Edie Waldman, Ethel Spiegel and Jennifer Finberg.

These young men helped with voice and violin. Herbert Rogers, Henry Anderson, William Park, Morris Krueger, John Hurley, Hector Glanville, Emanuel Waldman, John Andes, James Collins, Thomas Gaynor, Edmund W. Quintano, Leonardo Salvatore Quintano, Angelo Santello, Joseph A. Malapoly, Harry J. Coyne, Francis Leo Hurley, James Nylan, Dante Buch, Harry Manning, Archibald F. Cahill, Clement J. Milikin, Joseph E. Rubin, Russell Smith, George W. Hanley and John J. Slattery.

If you stood on a block and had your special measure taken and your style tastes consulted you couldn't better the swagerness of my "Longacre" Sack Suit. The price is one-third less than it should be—$10.

I can prove it!
